Angela Constance MSP, Minister for Youth Employment
Brian Linn General Secretary Aegis

MINISTERIAL VISIT

Angela Constance MSP, Minister for Youth Employment, along with Colin Keir, Edinburgh Western MSP visited Aegon HQ on Thursday 20th February 2014.

Aegis and Aegon announced the creation of six Modern Apprenticeships for 16-24 year olds, set to begin in April. This marks the first time Modern Apprentices will be working within Aegon. The creation of these new posts is a direct result of Aegis the Union's work in identifying a need to up skill new and existing customer service and back office staff within the workplace. This work is supported by the Learning and Development Funds, accessed by Aegis, through Scottish Union Learning. The Minister also participated in a tour of the Customer Service areas, meeting union members and learning more about union-led learning initiatives.

AIM: To reduce the number of adults in the UK with low levels of numeracy by over 1 million in the next five years.

By numeracy we mean 'Everyday Maths'; this is the Maths that helps people to make decisions in day-to-day adult life and work. Without a reasonable level of numeracy, people may not be able to manage their money through to pay-day, plan journeys or understand interest rates, medical information or promotional offers.

What is the National Numeracy Challenge?

* A UK wide drive designed to improve adults' confidence and competence with numeracy.

* A call to action to everyone in workplaces (employers and unions), adult education, community organisations, and individuals to - with our support - improve their numeracy using methods that suit them.

* The Challenge also aims to transform negative attitudes towards Maths and Numeracy and to create a positive "can do" attitude, a key element for improving numeracy skills.
